EVOLVE Forums have brought together leading Fellows from across specialties to share experiences, common themes and ideas.

53 participants from 40+ specialties

“Planning for future needs leadership and this forum has helped to go forward”

96.8% of respondents agreed or strongly agreed with “I understand the initiative”; “I feel I can contribute”; I plan to promote among my specialty”

Second EVOLVE Forum, April 2016
97.4% of respondents believed that the Forum provided the impetus and resources to drive EVOLVE forward

“The ideas presented on dissemination were really useful – as were the panel discussions and the mechanisms to drive change”
Next phase of EVOLVE is about translating the recommendations into clinical practice.…

- All published lists are available at www.evolve.edu.au
- Some are open for feedback, so please share your thoughts
- First EVOLVE podcast released LINK
- Consultations underway with other colleges
- Ideas being progressed to support widespread dissemination and sharing of recommendations; development of educational resources; materials to support discussions with patients; incorporation into trainee and supervisor materials; support for Specialty Societies to promote and engage (e.g. at their ASM) …. and much more
Objectives of this session

• Many EVOLVE recommendations have implications for other fields
  – Often, other specialist disciplines, but also GPs, surgeons
  – We are consulting with other colleges to collaborate on ways of disseminating these lists across the profession

• This Congress session will provide a clinical update on a number of these ‘cross specialty’ items, and provide background on the evidence and rationale for the recommended change

• We are also keen to hear your ideas on how you might bring about these changes in your practice
